ITEM	NOTES		WALKING	CLIMBING
General mountaineering boots	B2 boots eg La Sportiva Trango for easier routes and warmer weather (mid-season). Boots can be hired locally if you don't want to buy them specially for your trip, at around £10 per day	If you have more than one pair of boots, bring	Best for walking but OK for climbing too
Technical mountaineering boots	B3 mountaineering boots, eg La Sportiva Nepal Extreme Evo or Scarpa Rebel Pro GTX, for more technical routes and colder weather. See above for hire info	them – they take a long time to dry out	Best for climbing but OK for walking too
*Mountaineering crampons	C2 12 points eg Petzl Vasak will be great for most things except more technical climbing. Can be clip-on or strap-on, depending on what fits best with your boots. Anti-balling plates are good for stopping snow building up under your crampons.	Please check that your crampons fit your boots correctly before you come on the course.	Best for walking but OK for climbing too
*Technical crampons	C3 eg Black Diamond Stinger or Petzl Lynx needed for more technical climbing		Best for climbing but OK for walking too
Crampon bag	Simple is best. No zips to break!	No zips to break!		E
*Ice axe for mountaineering	For general mountaineering, a 50-65cm axe is good (dependent on how tall you are) eg Petzl Summit Evo		Best for walking but OK for climbing too
*lce axe/*ice hammer for technical climbing	Harder climbing requires more technical tools eg. Petzl Quark. A wrist loop or leash system is a good idea for beginners on climbing tools		Best for climbing but OK for walking too
#Climbing Harness	With adjustable leg-loops, so it can be fitted over thick clothing without removing boots and crampons, eg Black Diamond Bod or Petzl Adjama		A	E
#Climbing Helmet	Petzl Elios is a good all round helmet		A	E
Gaiters	I prefer short close-fitting gaiters eg Rab Hunza stretch mid gaiters		E	E
Waterproof jacket	Please make sure when choosing a jacket that the hood fits comfortably over a helmet whilst wearing a rucksack		E	E
Waterproof trousers	Should have at least a knee-length zip so they can be fitted over boots (a full-length zip in the legs is preferable for mountaineering)		E	E
Warm gloves and hat	Three pairs of gloves: warm ski gloves, Dachstein mittens, and thin gloves. One warm hat		E	E
Buff	Doubles as spare hat or neck protection		Α	А
